

What Can You Do With A Degree in...

TECHNICAL MANAGEMENT – OCCUPATIONAL SAFETY & HEALTH

The Bachelor of Science in Technical Management – Occupational Safety and Health Specialty was developed to prepare students for supervisory or management positions relating to occupational safety and health in environmental compliance, ergonomics, industrial hygiene and toxicology, construction, fire protection, and systems design. The program is geared toward students who are seeking new opportunities in the public or private sector such as service or manufacturing industries, local, state, or federal agencies, and the military.

Career Areas

Accident Investigation
Consulting
Education/Training
EH&S Specialist
Ergonomist
Human Factors
Industrial Hygiene
Loss Control
OSHA Compliance Management
Research
Risk Management
Safety Management
Safety Program Development/Coordination
Technical Writing
Training

Employers

Aerospace/Aircraft Manufacturers
Aircraft Maintenance
Airlines/Aviation Industry
Airports
Construction
Consulting
Consumer Products
Defense Contractors
Government
Insurance Companies
Investigative Agencies
Manufacturing
Multinational Corporations
Research Labs
Transportation Industry

Career Development Strategies

Build on previous experience for advancement; develop management and supervision skills
Database comprehension/computer skills
Investigation skills and practical hands-on experience
Develop communication skills
Develop critical thinking and analytical skills
Organization skills
Research methodologies
Technical writing skills